Introduction To Investing

The purpose of investing is to put your money to work with the expectation of achieving a profit. You can think of it as a very well researched bet on an outcome.

You likely know what the concept of investing is. However, what exactly are you investing in? In other words what are you spending your money on? Well, there are a variety of things you can invest in and a variety of ways to do it. In this guide we're going to be covering all of that.

Why Should I Invest?

Investing is a powerful way to grow your wealth. Stocks and mutual funds have historically provided great returns over long periods.

The money in your savings account is most likely earning you 0.1% interest versus if you invested it in U.S. Stocks, which have a long-term average return rate of 10%.

Example:

	Initial Investment	Return Rate	Invested For	Ending Amount
Savings	$10,000	0.1%/year	20 years	$10,202
Stocks	$10,000	10%/year	20 years	$67,275

Keep in mind though that in the real-world investments go up and down, and they usually don't deliver smooth returns every year. But in the long run, investing usually grows your money faster than a savings account.
